The re-creation theme on the back cover of this volume is one which, although difficult to clearly see at times, should be the central motivating force behind all that we endeavor. That the person is unique is a fact which no one can easily deny, but to be "uniquely me" is one goal which most people have great difficulty in achieving.

Here arises a contradiction to which the solution is, if not clear, at least evident to some extent. That is, to be "uniquely me" one must constantly and consistently strive toward the re-creation of self: for at any point where we stop, we shall also find others who have, unfortunately submitted to their own weaknesses. We, therefore, by placing ourselves in the same category with these others, have sacrificed our uniqueness.

In order to be "uniquely me" I must ever strive toward my own re-creation, my own fulfillment. It is the striving that I undertake and the path I take that makes the being in me the one and wonderful unique person that I am.

It is sincerely hoped by the editors and staff of this book that everyone in the class of 1976 has the strength to be the person that he or she is, and to ever strive to be what he or she must be, in spite of all the obstacles and opposition that are likely to be encountered throughout a lifetime.

We hope that life will be good to you; that the earth will be soft to walk on; and that you will find eternal peace with God, whatever you perceive him to be; and even though many of us shall never see each other again, we will always remain united in some way, no matter how "uniquely me" each and every one of us becomes.

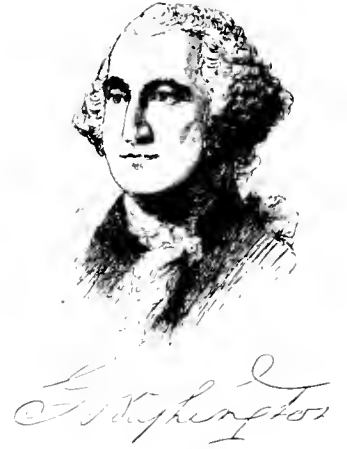

The catalogue entry:

Rev. Gennaro D'Ecclesiis, Professor of Music
B.A., Brooklyn College; M.S., City College of New York
M.A., Ph.D., New York University

says several significant things. It gives professional status, academic credentials, and indicates some of the areas of this man's experience. But it could never, even remotely, be termed a description of "Father D'Ec." Where in these two lines is the unforgettable picture of the "Carmen" enthusiast who, with a judicious use of roses, preferably real, made both the heroine and the torreadors come alive? How does one detect here the admirer of Gregorian Chant and the proponent of the modern masters? Impossible from this depiction the wit, the urbanity, the satiric accents of this multi-lingual, multi-gifted personality. His priesthood, his travels, and his artistic temperament have shaped the Professor we know and admire; and so, we dedicate this volume with affectionate greetings to our Father D'Ec, a truly unique individual.

Science Club

The Science Club provides an ongoing forum for investigation into areas beyond the scope of textbooks or classes. Through discussions regarding all branches of the sciences, it aids in developing a sense of well roundedness necessary in the formation of attitudes of future scientists.

Chess Club

In its first year, the newly formed Chess Club is headed James McCutcheon and Paul Romanello. The main purpose of the club is to promote an interest in chess. The students, while playing chess, exchange ideas and provide constructive criticism for each other. The club provides for a meaningful and efficient learning experience. The club in time hopes to teach chess notation, gain experience in using time clocks, and hopefully sponsor tournaments.

Political Affairs Club

Political Affairs Club is a non-partisan organization whose purpose is to promote political awareness and interest among the members of the under graduate association. To achieve this end, the club sponsors debates on pertinent topics, speakers on timely issues, student discussions, and an annual straw ballot. In addition attendance at the Intercollegiate Mock Senate is under its jurisdiction.

Sister Joan Blake, Sharon Ballogui, Susan McGlorin, Frank Proscia, Louis Alifano, Steven Hess, Janet Schneider, Gerardette Chionchio. Absent: Maria Salldarriaga, Joseph Franek.

Forever shall I strive toward the re-creation of self, yet never shall I fully achieve that goal; for if perchance I should find myself completely fulfilled at any point in my life, then I shall be inclined toward stagnation, and truly will I have lost the very meaning of re-creation.
